Requirements

Trekking at high altitude requires hard physical effort - you will need exceptional cardio-vascular fitness and to be thoroughly prepared. When you sign up, we'll ask you to share key performance data and look closely at your past experience. We'll then work with you to develop an appropriate training program, which will guarantee you the best chance of success.

If there are shortfalls within abilities and experience, we can collectively discuss the opportunities and/or provide a training support plan, including recommending preliminary climbs in the years and months leading up to this expedition, to ensure that you achieve your objective.
